Outline	This advisory service was combined with a workshop and so it became a moment of exchange of experience between Italian and Slovene colleagues. Nevertheless, the cross-country aspect could have been much more strengthened. It was quite of added value to get information from experts coming from a totally different reality, although also in this case it proved essential to have examples and case studies based on the daily working reality. In this case the preparation of the advisory was closely linked to the necessity to translate various documents from Italian to English. The preparation beforehand of targeted case studies would represent an asset.
