

Cooperation actions

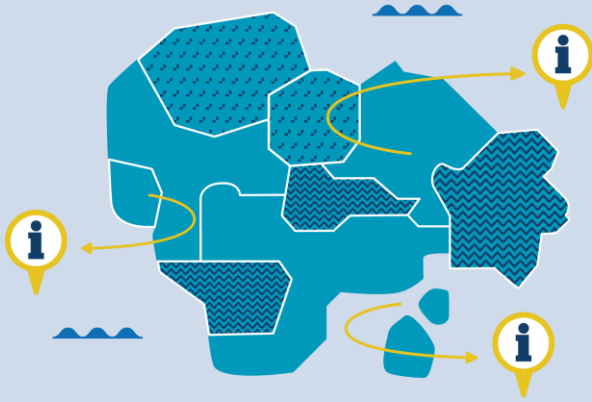

Role of National Contact Points

Besiana Ninka | Interact | 02.07.2024

Interact

Co-funded by the European Union
Interreg

The role of regional & national Contact Points in 21-27

Study published in 2022 providing a base of information and analysis for Interreg programmes setting up or developing their contact points.

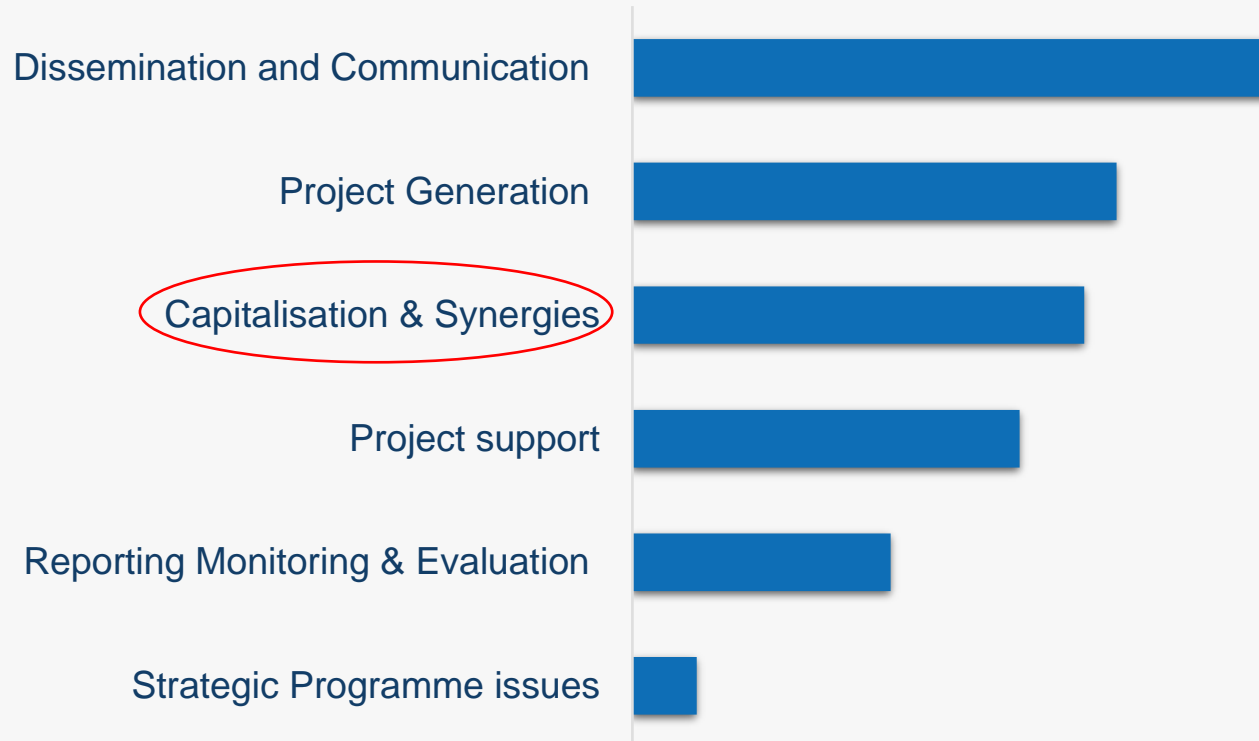

Advantages of Contact Points...

- ✓ Decentralisation and proximity to stakeholders;
- ✓ Knowledge and expertise of the region and relevant policies;
- ✓ Programme visibility in the region;
- ✓ More scope for a closer role/relationship with projects;
- ✓ Reduced language barrier and more targeted communication;
- ✓ Value of personal contacts and networks.

Key roles of Contact Points

National Contact Points: a potential to be further explored

Spatial Foresight et al. (2019)

National Contact Points have an important potential when it comes to developing synergies with other programmes”...the role of NCPs for the development of synergies, capitalisation and dissemination can be pointed out, NCPs can take a more proactive than reactive approach to liaising with, e.g. other programmes, national experts and work with the MA and JS on communication of results.

Floor is open for discussion

Cooperation works

All materials will be available on:

Interact library / Cooperation actions